No strike set

Local nurses to stay at work

By Monica Dick
A strike announced Tuesday by the United Nurses of Alberta is set for Jan. 1, but nurses on the picket lines won't be joined by their counterparts in Drayton Valley. Sandy Allen, president of UNA local 28, said a walkout at this time "is not likely," following the results of a strike vote held here Dec. 21.

Of 35 members eligible to vote on the issue, 21 did vote—with 18 saying no to strike action, and 13 backing the UNA's stand. "The situation here is different than in the big cities," Mrs. Allen noted, as larger centres often have alternative locations for emergency medical treatment. "Here, it's just the hospital," she added.

Local nurses will again meet Jan. 4 when most are back from Christmas holidays, she noted, and will decide on a future course of action. This would include another vote to see if strike action is favored, Mrs. Allen said, particularly if a provincial election drops on for a lengthy period of time.

Another strike vote with the majority favoring a walkout would be necessary in order for the local nurses to legally participate in any provincial action, according to UNA executive director Simon Ramond.

The Drayton Valley local was one of 17 of the UNA's 87 provincial chapters that voted not to back strike action, he added. "It's mostly in smaller areas, and represents maybe 100 members or about four per cent," he noted.

Mr. Ramond said he was not prepared to comment on any UNA plans concerning these 17 locals, and added "we're not going to alter the results in the small locals to affect the overall results."

At least 70 per cent of UNA membership voted to back the strike action, Mr. Ramond said.

Council gets

$150,000 present

Town council received an unexpected Christmas present last week in the form of a 25-year debenture for $150,000.

The debenture, which had been authorized by a previous council in 1979, had never been used. It was to be borrowed to help pay for work on the sewer lines in Drayton Valley.

Payment for the project, however, came out of general revenues fund.

The $150,000 was never collected and is still available to the town.

Council agreed to review the information and take the issue to the next meeting of the Finance committee for recommendations.

SANTA CAME EARLY Christmas Eve and three-year-old Jason found a velvet shirt to keep him warm in one of the parcels. Jason is the son of Pete and Helen Wayline of Rocky Rapids.

Budget plans begin

Drayton Valley council gave town administration authority last week to proceed with preparation of the 1982 operating budget, with instructions to draw up the document under guidelines of a 15 per cent increase for local taxpayers.

However, Town administrator Mary Doel was quick to point out this does not necessarily mean taxes will rise by the 15 per cent figure, as several other factors will have to be considered before the 1982 mill rate is established.

The town will send about $1.6 million as its operating budget beginning in the new year, Mr. Doel noted, and council's approval is a prerequisite for the budget paper presented at last Monday's meeting will enable staff to proceed with the budgeting process.

The 15 per cent could be cutbacking," he noted. "It doesn't necessarily mean taxes will increase along these lines, but it's a figure we've established for operating the municipality."

The completed budget is expected to be presented for council's approval sometime in May, he added.

Our Opinions

No strike

You have to really admire the irrational fortitude it must have taken for 17 locals of the United Nurses of Alberta to vote against the views of the main group, when it came down to deciding whether or not the ladies in white would exercise their legal right to strike as of Jan. 1.

Our own Drayton Valley group, local 28, was one of the select 17 to oppose the no-strike stance. In a vote taken Dec. 21, 31 out of 38 eligible to vote cast ballots. When the tally was complete, 16 of these were opposed to strike action, while 13 voted to go along with the UNA majority.

Local president Sandy Allen says the smaller centres are in a slightly different spot when it comes to strikes. It's a lot easier to walk off the job in the big cities, she noted, where there's a number of alternative open for those seeking emergency medical services.

But in a small town the centre of these services is the hospital. If you can remember back to the last time the nurses held a strike, to back primary wages and working condition demands, the walkouts virtually paralyzed hospital services across the province.

Patient loads were drastically reduced, surgery was cancelled, and only dire emergency and maternity cases were being accommodated. These same contingency plans were announced this week by the local hospital, should strike action be forthcoming from the nursing staff.

But this is not likely at the present time, Mrs. Allen said, as the local nurses would have to take another vote on the matter — with the majority in favor — in order for any without action to conform to provincial statutes governing strikes. Another vote would be a possibility if any provincial without were to drop on indefinitely, she added.

In the meantime, nurses in Drayton Valley will continue to show up at work. It's a service we should really be thankful for.

The 30 cent solution

Well, they're going to get it in the New Year. By the time the dust has settled on Christmas and you've made more resolutions to keep in 1982, our own Canada rates to help keep this illustrious Crown corporation in operation.

As of Jan. 1, mailing a first-class letter in this country is going to cost you 30 cents, up from the 17-cent stamp you used to be able to buy. Hang onto these — they could become collector's items in short order, as they won't be worth much else unless you're using them in combination with other stamps to make up the 30-cent mailing fee.

It's got to be one of the prime examples of our government listening to the voices of those who elected them to office (well, in Ontario and Quebec at least), as well as another loan to consumer pocketbooks that is starting to make 1981 despite its economic hand-appeal — took like a piece of cake compared with what's ahead in 1982.

Publisher's Comments

By Dave Robb

Well, the big day's all over and even the shouting has died down. We're left, as usual, with the rumblings and grumblings about whether this was good or bad Christmas on in past years. Ironically of course, the one voice to be making much comment on whether it was a good Christmas in the true sense, at the spirit of Christmas.

Here at the Western Review, we've said that "Christmas is for kids," and in the past issues we tried to emphasize that feeling. Part of our "Kids Christmas" was to provide space in the paper for the little ones to express their wishes to Santa, and you've seen some of these dreams printed or reprinted at the Western Review.

They all came across our desk first, mostly because I have the dubious task of making the truck to the post office each morning.

One of those letters was supposedly from a "St. Anthony School" student signed "Ronald Malar," written in green colored pencil, and exhibited a style of printing and spelling which closely resembled the type my four-year-old daughter left scrawled on the new ball wallpaper. We read the letter and ran it in the Dec. 23 issue of the Western Review.

Very soon after the paper hit the street we received a phone call from a rather upset young man, one Ronald Malar and later from his father, Denis Malar. Apparently some of Ron's school chums had decided to list advantages of the alphabet and have a little "fun" by making Ron and the Western Review the butt of a joke.

To Ron Malar, we offer our apologies and sincerely hope the letter caused him and his family no inconvenience.

To the students who authored the piece—well, the kids' really on you, guys. From my daughter, while printing a phrase off from a rather upset young man, one Ronald Malar and later from his father, Denis Malar. Apparently some of Ron's school chums had decided to list advantages of the alphabet and have a little "fun" by making Ron and the Western Review the butt of a joke.

To everyone, may we at the Western Review extend our wishes for a safe and happy 1982. We look forward to serving you over the next year.

ACC says federal questionnaire not valid

Dear Editor:

On Nov. 10, 1981, the federal minister of Agriculture developed a questionnaire concerning the beef industry in Canada. To 12,000 cattlemen I have a comment that the response to these questions will be heavily weighted by opinion from 5,000 dairy producers primarily in Quebec and many who do not depend on the beef industry for their primary source of income.

I am also concerned that over 110,000 head producers will not receive this questionnaire, which requires its status to an opinion poll, rather than a referendum on the views of the beef industry in total.

Mr. Whelan has consistently expressed his opinion in favor of a national marketing board for beef, with regulated production by provincially-appointed people. The outcome of the Senate Agriculture Committee has publicly stated his endorsement of a similar system.

At the same time, federal department of Agriculture officials are developing an emergency plan for beef production, processing and marketing in other countries, which was based on the opinion of representatives of the food industry in Canada.

It is difficult to reconcile the opinions of cattlemen members in establishing a system to reduce or limit production, when officials of government (The activity developing plan to expand production).

Most of the difficulties in agriculture in Canada today are a result of the abdication of responsibility by our federal government to develop other agricultural policies, and an obvious lack of understanding of the effects of their fiscal and economic policies on primary producers of beef and other commodities.

In my opinion, the thirty members of the Senate Agriculture Committee who have publicly stated their endorsement of a similar system, should be publicly exposed. All beef producers who may get the questionnaire.

to respond to this questionnaire should carefully consider all the implications before they answer.

Most cattlemen believe that the existing marketing system for beef is not the reason for the problems in Canada and elsewhere.

The emphasis being placed on that subject by federal authorities and farm organizations is detracting from real efforts to deal with the real problems, created by the economic conditions in Canada and elsewhere.

Farm leaders agree that inflation and costs can only be offset by increased productivity and development of markets outside of Canada. Politicians would be wise to listen to their opinions and encourage the private sector and entrepreneurs of Canada to develop, rather than stifle, the potential we have in this country.

Yours truly,
Ron Whelan

He doesn't keep well in storage

By Rev. A.P. Irving
Christmas is just another year. Some of the gifts given or received are already beyond recall, or have been forgotten, while others will not be shown the hearts of both giver and receiver for months or possibly years ahead. By next weekend a lot of the decorations will be taken down and stored, hopefully to be used again next year.

The fact that Christmas comes and must not be stored away, to store it is to lose it, as it will not keep in storage.

We can know that God is with us each day. "My sheep hear my voice, and I know them, and they follow me."

"His Name shall be called Emmanuel, which means, God with us." (Matt. 1:23)

There are difficult times that come in the life of every person, and as we walk with God, it is how that He responds to us.

David said, "I will walk through the valley of the shadow of death, I will fear no evil, for thou art with me; thy rod and thy staff they comfort me." (Ps. 23:4)

Paul was travelling by boat from Caesarea to Rome when that ship was caught in a terrible storm and was driven helplessly for 14 days. Then God appeared to him and said, "I am with you, you will get to Rome, everyone on the ship will be saved. The storm came in to tell how they were exposed as an island and everyone made it to shore."

In difficult and trying times we can have the presence of God, and also in the good times. Because He came, we can know God is with us.

Because He came, we have a commission, we have a duty to perform, and a task to accomplish.

Jesus told his disciples to go into all the world and have the gospel message, and in some guarantee most of the people of the then-known world heard about Jesus. They suffered much in accomplishing this task, and many were put to death for their faith.

Still the challenge comes to us today to share the good news that Jesus is full and true forgiveness of sin.

Because Christ is alive today, we have one who will lead us and guide us each day. Possibly at one of your

I am."

Because He came, we have a message to share. May we accept the challenge.

Hines goes 'down under' for World Cup Rodeo

By Chris Hines
Drayton Valley's Clayton Hines "drew a dog" in the middle bronze event at the Cowboys' Christmas Rodeo held in Hobbema on the weekend, and he failed to place.

However, the local rodeo star doesn't plan to let the bid of the draw bother him as he heads to Australia for the $1 million World Cup Rodeo.

Clayton, the new Canadian amateur bronze champion, left Monday (Dec. 19) on his "down under" in the port in the richest event in the history of professional rodeo.

He'll ride in 22 performances in middle bronze, with $5,000 on line for each ride. The total purse for Clayton's event alone will be over $100,000.

Clayton is making the trip to Australia with fellow rider Chris Anderson of Rocky Mountain Horse. They expect to be away for about a month.

In Hobbema on Saturday evening, Clayton drew an "amateur" but horse, which just wouldn't back. The Armbanders place second

By Mary Cummings
The Pembina Armwrestling team led by John Mandryk took a close second place in the 1981 Western Canadian Armwrestling team championship in Calgary the week of Nov. 28.

The tournament attracted teams from Ontario, Manitoba, Saskatchewan, Alberta and B.C. The Alberta team were split into an all-star team. There was a total of 82 entries.

The freeweight were represented by Don Crockett of Estevan, and were defeated in the quarter finals by Glen Straker of Calgary, who was the tournament.

The Pembina team was in first place until the elimination event, which was won by Crockett, thus totaling enough points to win overall.

John Mandryk will be leading team Canada in Reno, Nevada on Jan. 9, 1982 at the Santa Fe International Armwrestling championship. This is one of the biggest tournaments staged in the world.

John Kennedy, guard, 212. Cindy is a newcomer to the Calgary team this season. Before entering high school, she played one year of basketball at H.W. Pickup. Her coach is her father, Mr. John Kennedy. She is 5'7". Cindy has her hobbies as volleyball, basketball and horseback riding. Her future plans are to get a good education and become a social worker for problem teenagers.

Lost in Action
The holiday season has brought temporary loss of hockey action in Drayton Valley. The M.B. hockey teams were to play last week, but the games in Edmonton were cancelled due to heavy snow. The Junior B club is open until Saturday (Jan. 3) when they host Edmonton Arrows in the arena. The Flyers are scheduled to play on Saturday (Jan. 3) when they host Edmonton Arrows in the arena. The Flyers are scheduled to play on Saturday (Jan. 3) when they host Edmonton Arrows in the arena.

Evansburg teams play well in minor hockey action

By Mary Cummings
During the first week of December the Evansburg Peas played three games of exciting hockey games. In their game against Oxygene it was a 5-0 win. Then at Rocky Point they lost 1-2. However, in an exhibition game against Cherkil, the Evansburg players came out victorious 5-1.

Unfortunately in the game against Oxygene, Evansburg player Lalley Benson had the misfortune to fall first into the boards, breaking his arm, and then Mr. and Mrs. Charlie Wapshott for the donation made to purchase money for the team's sweater, and having them sewn on.

In minor hockey on Dec. 12, the Oxygene team played in Evansburg against the local Mites and after three periods of exciting hockey games, the Oxygene team won 5-0. The game would have been more competitive had Oxygene not a disadvantage, being short of some of their faster skaters.

After 10 games the Oxygene statistics are 13 wins, two ties and three losses. The consolation is in operation at the arena. However, volunteer workers are needed. Anyone who can offer their assistance is asked to phone Dorothy MacDonald at 777-3069. Your co-operation would be greatly appreciated.

Sport comment

Drayton Valley offers its residents a wide variety of recreational activities, but there's one pastime that hasn't been accepted here yet.

With the emergence of beer madness in the great white north, it seems appropriate that Big D.V. get a taste of recreation, beer style. Activities such as basketball, chess, bowling and ice racing all have their merits, but the ingenious game invented by SCTV headwinds Bob and Doug McKenzie truly deserves to be on the forefront of the local recreational scene.

It's called the beer hunter, and it's not a game to be snuffed at if you do, you're liable to get four pounds of back bacon jammed up the back of your down jacket.

Like, uh, the sport's a lot cheaper than any other around here. All you need are six cans of beer (beers good enough here, uh) and a couple of advertisement housewives.

One loser, Mike, shoves up one of the cans, and the players proceed to open each until a loser is determined. The loser is the unlucky housewife who gets jammed in the face with beer. The winner of the game gets to laugh a lot, while saying things like, "Beer shampoo, uh, wait—no," and "Stop spraying the floor, you housewife!"

Unfortunately, the Town recreation department doesn't have the funds to support a beer hunter league in Drayton Valley. For all the hours around here that some towns have to be busy, in fact, many talented beer hunters may just have to limit off elsewhere to play.

The community does have some real first class housewives, and these people desperately need a formalized forum in which to display their unique abilities. Whether it be snatching some unsuspecting person into a game of beer hunter, or just bailing out the house theme, the activities need to be organized. Any audience of order would be better than having uncontrolled beer house.

So, it's up to the people of Drayton Valley to band together and respond to the inviting call of the great white north. If not, our hometown beerers will have to pack up their wagon and back home and TAKE CHIE!

Making New Year's resolutions

By Lesi Pomeroy
Librarian

The only resolution I'm going to make this year is not to make any New Year's resolutions! A library visit or a book review is all I need to feel the same way. Year after year we take stock of our accomplishments in the past 12 months and set up goals for the coming year. And then—365 days later—we find ourselves making the same resolutions all over again.

Make your New Year's resolutions and keep them this year with books from the library.

New Titles
Start over by taking a look at these new arrivals:
Learn to Paint with Ole (Carroll); People Study

People (Wendell); story of psychology; Emory (Hart) account of deplorable treatment inflicted on Japanese-Canadian doctor (W.W. II); Silent Children (Haskett) - parental guide to prevention of child sexual abuse; Swi-zerland; The Awful Truth (Ziegler) - home of benevolent neutrality; the Red Cross; League of Nations; custom clocks and quality chocolate; or a key imperial power and the world's number one receiver of stolen goods?

Other new titles are: How to use humor effectively in a manner of speaking (Macdonald) - practical guide to public speaking; Candel-ia Complex (Dawling) - women's hidden fear of independence; Invisible Al-coholics (Haskett) - women and alcohol abuse in America. The library also has a selection of related materials available, courtesy of A.A.M.C. Making Con-cessions (Rowland) - how a television team exposed organized crime in Canada; Blunderful World of Stopp-ers (Schuler) - treasury of broadcasting's most hilar-ious award-winning humor-ists. Free available.

Of special interest to our student patrons, a limited supply of free booklets, published by government of Canada, States and amateur sport, are available.

Preparing pelts for market

By Ray Hunter
There are a lot of trappers out there who make a lot more about preparing pelts for the market than I am just a beginner when it comes to trapping and preparing pelts. I am just a beginner when it comes to trapping and preparing pelts. I am just a beginner when it comes to trapping and preparing pelts.

First, you must have a good skinning knife. It should be sharp and have a good handle. You should also have a good skinning board. You should also have a good skinning knife. It should be sharp and have a good handle. You should also have a good skinning board.

Next, you must have a good skinning knife. It should be sharp and have a good handle. You should also have a good skinning board. You should also have a good skinning knife. It should be sharp and have a good handle. You should also have a good skinning board.

From the Gun Rack

Keep working forward until you are about eight inches from the ramp. At this point begin around the ramp and work forward about four inches or so, then return to the other end. This seems to make it much easier to the body out. All the fat and flesh is now off the hide and it's looking pretty good. It has to be stretched now. The leg thing is stretching is to not over-stretch. This is something many trappers do and it detracts from the value of the end product.

Now take the hide down halfway between the four original points. What you have now is eight points all tucked down to the same circle. Check now to make sure the hide is not over-stretched. If the hide is snug but not tight, finish the job of tucking the hide to the board. Try to keep your hands about one inch apart. This gives a nice clean appearance which is very important.

Another little trick Russ showed me was to put the nails at a slight angle towards from the edge of the hide. This makes the job of scraping a lot easier. Now the hide is on the board and you are ready for "scrapping." Of all the things to be done to guarantee a good pelt, scrapping could possibly be the most important.

Many implements have been used for scrapping, butting knives, old kitchen knives, pieces of bone and even saw handles. They all work but as well as a commercially made scraper. The "scraper" is the instrument used to get the grease out of the hide. This is a most important process because if the grease is not removed from the leather it will "burn" and the fur will be ruined.

Beginning from the top, scrape, using considerable pressure. Be sure to be very careful around the front legs because it is very easy to cut the hide here. The scraper has rounded corners which help prevent cuts but if you use too much pressure you will cut through.

4-H club meets
On Dec. 6, the Carwood Hall 4-H Club held its Christmas party. It was the afternoon the members and their families were having a good time. The party was held at the Carwood Hall and was a great success. Everyone had a good time.

Merry Christmas & Happy New Year.

Thank you to all the people who have donated to the Shangi-La Lodge Social Club and entertained through the year 1981. Our banner was a huge success. Special thanks to Mary Ayotte and our patron Inge Hawryuk and the staff at the lodge for all the work done through the year.
